POSITION DESCRIPTION
UCLA Linguistics: Assistant Adjunct Professor in Phonology

Position Description:
The UCLA Department of Linguistics anticipates making a full time appointment at the rank of Assistant Adjunct Professor starting Fall 2023. This will be a one year appointment in the area of phonology. The teaching load for the position will be a total of five graduate and undergraduate courses over three quarters (last week of September to middle of June); most likely two graduate courses (one a survey course in phonological theory and one a special-topics course), and three undergraduate upper-division phonology courses. The appointee will be expected to participate in the weekly research seminar in phonology, to interact with graduate students and other faculty in the department, and to participate in advising.

Basic/minimum qualifications: Completed Ph.D. degree by start date
Fall 2023 instruction will begin in the last week of September 2023. Salary will be based on the current UCLA Assistant Professor salary scales.

Applicants should make use of UCLA’s job application link below to submit the following:

Cover letter (Required)
Curriculum vitae (Required)
Three letters of recommendation, ideally including letters discussing the applicant’s teaching record (Required)
Statement of teaching philosophy (Required)
Copies of teaching evaluations or other evidence of teaching effectiveness (strongly encouraged)
Two writing samples (Required)
EDI statement (Required)

The posted UC salary scales set the minimum pay determined by rank and step at appointment. See Table 1 [https://www.ucop.edu/academic-personnel-programs/_files/2022-23/oct-2022-salary-scales/t1.pdf]. The salary range for this position is $70,900-$83,380. “Off-scale salaries”, i.e. a salary that is higher than the published system-wide salary at the designated rank and step, are offered when necessary to meet competitive conditions.

The initial review date of applications is July 21, 2023.

Qualifications:
The ideal candidate will have experience that demonstrates:

Full command of contemporary phonological theory as well as general knowledge of phonological phenomena
Skill in teaching
Other skills that could enhance the applicant’s contributions to the department’s phonology program. These will vary from applicant to applicant, but might include specialist knowledge of a language or language family, fieldwork experience, expertise in experimental methods or statistics, expertise in computational approaches, or other skills.

The University of California, Los Angeles, and the Department of Linguistics are interested in candidates who are committed to the highest standards of professional activities and to the development of a campus climate that supports equality and diversity. Women and people of color are strongly encouraged to apply.
